

EMPTY ATLAS

BIO

Take it in stride. Work through the pain. Shrug it off. We have a lot of ways to say one thing: We're built to strive. You'll find that idea at the center of "Matador," the new single from Mississippi indie-rock outfit Empty Atlas.

Epic yet intimate, fierce yet vulnerable, "Matador" picks up and runs with the signature sound and lyrical flair of "Kairos," Empty Atlas's 2020 LP. It also marks the group's third team-up with award-winning producer and mixing engineer Tyler Spratt (Pierce the Veil, Dave Matthews Band, The Brevet).

"I know for me, this was the song I needed right now," vocalist Micah Smith says. "Putting your whole heart into something can be draining, whether it's music or work or relationships. But when it's worth the fight, you keep fighting. That's what 'Matador' is about to me."

"Matador" is out Friday, March 18, on Carved from Stone Records. Stream it on Spotify, Apple Music, Amazon Music, Tidal and other digital platforms. Get your exclusive merch at emptyatlas.com.
